Father Jim Ball
Priest and
Movie Director

Fr. Jim Ball was a musician, photographer and filmmaker for twenty years before coming to conversion in 1992. Having been led to the Lord by a Pentecostal gospel singer, and having grown up with a Catholic father and a Missouri Synod Lutheran mother, he quickly began to explore the different branches of the Christian faith. Finding God in so many different churches, he began attending church at the Assemblies of God on Sunday mornings, Mass at the Grotto of Lourdes in Emmitsburg, Maryland on Sunday evenings, and then returning home to watch Ben Haden and Charles Stanley preach on TV.

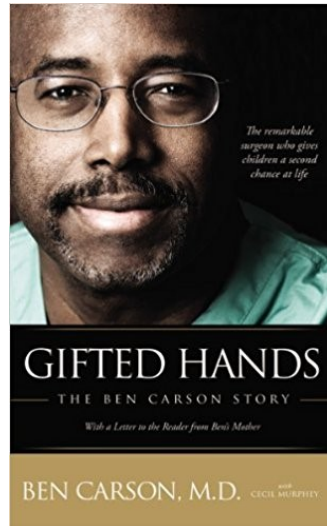

Having such a rich and varied experience, he developed a heart for the unity of the church, and was grieved over the contentions between the different denominations. He also wondered where he would fit as there seemed to be no one church that was Charismatic, Evangelical and Catholic all in one. He attended St. Michael's Seminary and in 1998, he was ordained a priest and sent out to plant Holy Apostles CEC in Westminster, Maryland. Father Jim continued to make films for churches and Christian schools for the next few years. In 2007, he co-wrote and directed "The Sins of the Fathers", which was based on experiences he encountered while working in the generational healing ministry. The film was completed in 2008 and won numerous awards at both secular and Christian film festivals.

Along with his good friend and collaborator Richard Cutting, he wrote the feature film Order of Rights which tackles the abortion debate head on. The film chronicles the journey of a high school athlete whose pregnant girlfriend has decided, against his will, to terminate her pregnancy. As a media storm brews around them, he fights for his rights as a father and his unborn child's right to live.

Fr. Jim lives in Westminster, Maryland, has been married to his wife Barbara for fifteen years and has a teenaged daughter, Emily. He remains active in music, film, photography, writing, and enjoys sports – especially football, and most especially the Ravens.
